

Casey Stuck
in Fourth Grade!

By: Reilly

One day Casey the unicorn came home really tired. She had just come home from teaching the fourth graders. “Wanna play tag?”, asked Rebecka the unicorn. Casey’s daughter, Rebecka, was 5 now and she still didn’t know the meaning of ‘I’m tired.’ Well maybe she knew it, but it didn’t seem like it when Casey said it.

“Not right now, I’m tired”, said Casey. She was looking and feeling a little woozy. “Well do ya wanna play something?”, wondered Rabecka. “No, I want to go to sleep”, groaned Casey. Now Casey was really tired and she couldn’t go to sleep with Rabecka yelling in her face. “WAKE UP SLEEPY HEAD!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!”, screamed Rabecka.

“WHY DON’T YOU GO PLAY RUB-A-DUB-DUB THREE PONIES IN A POND!!!!!!!!!!!!”, yelled Casey annoyed about Rabecka screaming. Rabecka knew very well this meant ‘go to take a bath because you are stinky.’ “Bu-”, started Rabecka. “No buts”, insisted Casey. “WAAAAAAAAAAAAAH!!!!”, wailed Rabecka. Most horses loved baths at this age, but Rabecka didn’t. So Rabecka took a bath, Casey finally got some sleep, and it was the next morning.

Rabecka also didn’t like Casey yelling in her face to get out of bed. Mostly every morning Rabecka is woken up by Casey coming in and yelling, “get out of bed!” She hates this because Casey does it before the alarms, in between alarms, and after alarms.

The alarms start out quiet, then got louder and louder until Rabecka couldn't take it anymore. Rabecka waited until like the hundredth beep until turning it off. But Casey on the other hand got up on the first beep smack-dab right there.

“Time for breakfast!”, called Casey. “Are we having porridge today? I really want porridge”, blabbered Rabecka. Rabecka is strange because first comes the baths, then comes the alarms, and now here comes porridge. When Rabecka was four she hated porridge. She used to say when Casey started putting porridge in the grass cart, “No mommy, don't buy that! That stuff poisons me!” “No it doesn't”, Casey would say. She always finds the right time to say that.

Also no one can fool Casey. The best pranksters can't even fool her! Those kids have played every prank in the world on her. But she didn't fall for any of the pranks that they thought were funny.

“Mommy?”, Rabecka was trying to stop her mom from daydreaming. “Wha-” her mom started. “Phew!”, said Rebecka and she thought she had stopped her mom from daydreaming for another hour but she was wrong. “Wha- what are you doing here Fred?”, asked Casey. “MOMMY! Fred is a student at school and is not here. We are at home! We need to get to school NOW, we're late!”, exclaimed Rabecka. Her mom woke up and said, “sorry my brain was stuck in 4th grade.”
