

Just Go For It!

By Maddie

When Ice skaters are learning, they don't care how they look or what people think of them. If they are good skaters, they think of how they can do better. They think of who could show them how. They think of who they are and who they want to be. They try and try. How you become not as good is if you try to do something you can already do like keeping it easy. Try to win! To win, you're going to have to try harder and make it into something that you can already do. So just go for it.

