

Rorsea and Sara's

Adventure

By Madeleine

One day Sara was riding her horse with her mom and her dad. They were sad. They were going to sell their house. Mom told her she could keep her horse. Oh, by the way the horse's name was Rorsea.

When Sara was not watching her horse got stuck in the cattleguard. Her mom and dad helped horse get out of the cattleguard.

Then when they got home they heard about a race, a horse race. They signed up to do the race.

When Sara was eating candy, she dropped a piece. Her horse ate it. Then the horse went wild. She started to jump in her stall.

Sara called the doctor. The doctor said that after her horse drank some water her horse would be better, so she did. It worked. She was so, so, so happy.

Then she started to practice. She practices, practices, and practices until it was 8:30. Then she got ready to go to bed. She put her horse to bed first.

Then Sara's family planned to win the race and stay at their home where they were. When Sara was sleeping, she dreamed to win the race and save their home.

The next day they went to the race. Right when Sara started she fell off her horse. She got out of the race and lost.

Then they started to sell their house. Then suddenly the person who won gave half of his money to Sara. She said thank you to him. Then Sara gave Rorsea a bubble bath.

Then everyone was very happy, especially Sara's family. They started clearing up from getting ready to sell their house. They lived happily ever after.
