

The Jedi Trials

BY: RYAN
K.

The Jedi Trials

By: Ryan K.

Chapter 1

Becoming a Jedi

Gweb stood on his doorstep watching the ship approach from space. He had requested to become a Jedi and someone was coming to tell him what he need to do in order to become one. The camouflaged colored spaceship was small and sleek. It landed and the hatch opened and a stormtrooper stepped out.

“Is this the young man who wants to become a Jedi?” The stormtrooper looked Gweb up and down. Gweb was tall and skinny with messy brown hair and blue eyes. Gweb nodded, excited to start his mission.

The stormtrooper started up the ramp to the ship. “Follow me.”

Gweb hesitantly followed. The stormtrooper entered the ship and then the cockpit. He started the engines with a roar. Gweb sat down in a seat behind the stormtrooper as the ship shook and lifted off from the landing pad. Gweb had heard stories about what it was like to fly but they were far off from the experience.

“Like it?” The stormtrooper had noticed that Gweb was enjoying it.

Gweb nodded red in the face from being noticed. Looking out the window Gweb watched as the planet that he had left get smaller in the distance.

“Where are we going?”

Gweb had no clue where they were going and what he was going to have to do because no one had told him what he had to do to become a Jedi.

“You will see when we get to the planet Gibb.”

Gweb got ready because they were about to enter hyperspace. Gweb flattened to his seat as the stars became a blur. It felt like he was floating. After a few minutes later they shot to a stop, throwing Gweb forward.

The stormtrooper said to Gweb, “We are entering orbit around the planet Gibb” and started the descent towards the planet.

The spaceship shuttered as the ship enter the atmosphere. Below was a huge forest that was so dense that Gweb could not see between the trees. It looked like the moon called Endor. The stormtrooper guided the spaceship through a space in the trees and onto a hidden landing pad.

Gweb climbed out of his seat and walked down the ramp. The forest was dark and damp. Gweb could tell by the air that it had rained recently. The dirt ground was wet but not quite mud. The ship blended in well with the tall surrounding trees. Gweb looked for the stormtrooper. The roar of engines caused Gweb to spin around. The ship flew off into space. Gweb was stranded.

Chapter 2

The forest and the cave

Gweb watched as the ship that had just left him entered space. Gweb thought that he was ready for anything that he might have to deal with but he had underestimated himself. It wasn't the first time. Gweb had been taught to not feel fear. Gweb looked in detail at his surroundings. There were twigs that he could use for a fire. He started to gather big branches for a shelter. Gweb stopped in the middle of putting a particular big branch on a stick wall that he had made. He was mad at himself for forgetting that the most important resource was water. He looked around and saw that there were many pools of dirty horrible smelling water. The last thing that he wanted to do was drink from them. He looked at the sky trying to judge what time it was. He figured that he had at least a few hours till it started to get dark. He started in the most general direction, north. He walked for about thirty minutes and stumbled upon a cave.

He walked in it, thinking that there might be a pool of clean water that he could drink. Gweb walked in and soon pitch blackness surrounded him. He was not sure that he should be doing this, but he needed water, so he walked in. He clicked on a lamp and headed in farther. The stone walls were thick and covered in moss. Gweb walked into a large circular room that was lit up with a ton of crystals. Suddenly a hooded figure walked out of the shadows.

“Find the right crystal or face certain destruction.”

The hooded figure turned and vanished just as the cave began to tremble.

Chapter 3

Finding the crystal

“What???” Gweb was confused.

There were so many crystals that he was sure that he would chose wrong. He walked around frantically trying to find his crystal before the ceiling came down on him. He looked and looked but all the crystals appeared the same. He grabbed a random crystal, hoping that it would be the right one, but it melted in his hand. He ran through the room and towards the mouth of cave and a pile of rocks fell in front of the cave.

“No!” he exclaimed.

He ran back in the room freaking out. Rocks that were large enough to crush him flat fell everywhere. As he ran toward the middle of the room, a boulder fell right in front of him smashing the tips of his shoes.

Then he remembered the training his dad had taught him. Stay calm and trust your senses. Gweb took a deep breath and calmed his mind. He reached out with his senses and felt a cold spot in room. He walked towards it and saw his crystal. He was surer than he had ever been that this was it.

He picked it up and the cave suddenly stopped shaking. Gweb studied the crystal closely. It was small and blue and it felt warm in his hand. He felt that he should exit the cave. Suddenly there was a flash of light and he was standing by the landing pad that he had started off from. To his surprise he saw the camouflage ship that had brought him here on the landing pad.

“Happy to see me?” asked the stormtrooper.

“No!” Gweb yelled.

Chapter 4

Building the lightsabor

The stormtrooper handed Gweb some pieces. “Build your lightsaber.” The stormtrooper walked off into the forest and left Gweb very confused.

“How am I supposed to build a lightsaber when I have no instructions?” Gweb told himself.

He remembered the cave and knew that he did have instructions, his father’s. He quickly went to work examining all the pieces. He raised his hands in triumph and yelled “I got it!” His hands were flying as he put pieces together. After a few hours Gweb was finished. He activated the lightsaber. It was blue and was amazing.

The stormtrooper came back and fired at Gweb but Gweb deflected right back at him, who spun and dodged it.

“Hey! What are you trying to kill me?” exclaimed Gweb.

“You are a true Jedi.” said the stormtrooper. He holstered his blaster. Gweb deactivated his lightsaber, but he kept it ready because he did not completely trust the stormtrooper after he shot at him. The stormtrooper turned and walked up to his ship.

“While you were gone I brought you some visitors.”

Gweb spun around and activated his lightsaber. He was sure that whatever the stormtrooper did was not good. He looked as the stormtrooper returned with a tall man that was dressed in black armor. The man held out his hand and Gweb flew backwards against a tree held by an invisible force.

“You are weak.” said the mysterious man.

Gweb struggled to break the invisible force holding him. The man walked around Gweb.

“Where did you get your lightsaber?” he questioned.