Frog Does It

By, Cambelle B

One day by the pond, Frog was trying to get to a lily pad farther from shore. He tried a few times. The only reason Frog was trying to get to that certain lily pad was because all the flies were there. Frog was trying to get to the lily pad when his friend turtle came along.

"Sup?" Turtle asked.

Frog said, "Please help me get on that lily pad!"

"Why?" Turtle asked. "How about you just go to a closer lily pad?"

"Because that one has all the flies," Frog exclaimed.

Turtle walked in circles. "I've got it. How about you get a head start like running first?"

Frog took a big running start. SPLASH. He only made half way there. He kept trying and got only worse. Snail came along and slowly slid up to them.

"Hey can I give you a tip?" Snail asked.

"Sure," Frog replied.

"Keep trying. Don't give up," Snail said.

"O.K.," frog said

He kept trying. He splashed again and again. He dried off then tried again. He couldn't do it

"How about you swim to the lily pad?" Snail asked

"I'll try," Frog replied.

He swam to the lily pad. His hands were too wet and kept slipping on the edges of the pad. He swam back and dried off again. Then he sat on a log and thought. On the opposite side of the pond, baby fox skipped rocks off the top of the water.

"I've got it. How about I hop lily pad to lily pad to get to the middle lily pad," Frog said with a smile on his face.

He swam out into the water and pushed smaller lily pads near the middle pad. He swam back to shore. Then he hopped lily pad to lily pad.

"I DID IT!!!" Frog said with his arms flying in the air and hopping up and down.

Frog gobbled up some flies and hopped back to his friends.

"Thank you guys for trying to help me get to the lily pad," Frog said happily.

Frog did it every morning, lunch, and dinner. He got a lot more flies than usual. He was the happiest frog ever because he kept trying.

THE END!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
